Shortly afterward, he received the following answer: Dear Sir.--I have received a letter addressed to my grandmother, who died some years ago, and have noted its contents. Grandma often told me the story of girlish escapade, and wondered what had become of that egg on which she wrote her name and address. Hoping that you found the egg in the best of condition, I remain, yours very truly. To Test New York Law.--District Attorney Whitman, accompanied by Assistant District Attorney Delehanty and inspectors of the State Department of Health, appeared in the Tombs Police Courts yesterday and swore out summonses for the president and secretary of the Greenwich Cold Storage Company, of 402-404 Greenwich street, for an alleged violation of the pure food laws. These summonses are the first issued in what will be a long and important crusade to enforce the laws governing the keeping of food. The summonses were issued for L. R. Prior, the president of the company, and John D. Cowles, its secretary and treasurer, and ordered their appearance in the Tombs Police Court next Monday afternoon. The section of the law on which they were issued is Chapter 335 of the Laws of 1911, which provides for the marking on all barrels and packages of perishable food the date of the receipt in a cold storage house, if stored. Inspector Roche of the State Board of Health furnished the evidence on which the summonses were issued. He stated...
